

easyCMDB now offers integration with MediaWiki (<http://www.mediawiki.org>), providing additional capability for information sharing and documentation.

The implementation of MediaWiki with easyCMDB is loosely coupled, with MediaWiki sharing the easyCMDB web server and database. Each easyCMDB database has its own MediaWiki repository, and can only be accessed by authenticated easyCMDB users. Creation of MediaWiki users is optional and remains separate to easyCMDB users.

Apart from minor changes to the MediaWiki `LocalSettings.php` file, the original MediaWiki code is untouched, allowing for future upgrades of MediaWiki and addition of extensions.

MediaWiki is installed into easyCMDB via the patch `patch.mediawiki.zip`. Following installation MediaWiki can be added to an easyCMDB menu by creating a new item under Tools & Utils > Menu Definition as follows:

Target Company:	(Current) <input type="button" value="v"/>
Title:	MediaWiki
Large image URL:	/images/menu/mediawiki.gif <input type="button" value="..."/> 82x76
Small image URL:	/images/menu/small/mediawiki.gif <input type="button" value="..."/> 55x55
Show title:	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
CI Type:	<input type="button" value="v"/>
View:
URL:	/wiki
New window:	<input type="checkbox"/>

The above menu item appears as follows: (can be replaced with own image choice)

Support for discussion forums is also supported with the inclusion of the AWC Forum Extension. This extension can be easily added to the End User menu and accessed separately using a menu definition like that pictured below. (see over)

Target Company: (Current)

Title:

Large image URL: 82x76

Small image URL: 55x55

Show title:

CI Type:

View:

URL:

New window:

This produces a menu item that looks as follows:

Here is the default Forum page when accessed via the End User menu in easyCmdb:
